Faculty Mentor: It is possible that some important changes have occurred, or will occur, in the postdoc's job responsibilities. Let the postdoc know what changes you see occurring in the work situation so that the postdoc knows what job assignments are most important and relevant. Consider the postdoc's skills and knowledge, and determine if additional types of support or training are needed. Document significant job changes on the job description.

ntrol. Note any suggestions you have for removing these obstacles.
ostdoc's Comments:

Section III – Obstacles to Effective Job Performance: Note the "trouble spots" - things that happened that made you less effective than you could be. Obstacles to performance may come from resource limitations, the performance of subordinates or others, breakdowns in communication, your own attitudes or performance, or factors that are beyond your Section IV – Key Competency Requirements: Competencies represent the knowledge, skills, and abilities you must possess to successfully perform your job. By assessing your performance on key competencies, you and your supervisor are better able to make decisions concerning your career development, readiness for new assignments, pay and job performance. Generic core competencies required for professional staff members have been identified and are listed on the chart below. These areas are described in full at the end of this worksheet. Please refer to these descriptions.

Using the chart, rate yourself on each of the core competencies listed. Your ratings can provide you and your supervisor with useful information about your strengths and areas in need of additional development.

Faculty Mentor: Note in the column provided on the chart below any differences between your ratings and the employee's ratings. Indicate below what you and the employee will do between now and the next appraisal to further develop the employee's core competencies.
